The Silver Lining

"Mister," began the newly looking man. "I haven't got no home and no money to pay." Interrupted the man address, "No coal bills no worry lest the landlord raise your rent. Permit me to congratulate you."

"I have no job and no money."

"But I'm serious, mister. I have no money and no job."

"No temptation to spend it foolishly on able-bodied beggars. Why, you're the very child of fortune. Good day!"

—Boston Transcript.

"In your new son-in-law a good provider?"

"He can just about keep my daughter in gloves. I pay for everything else."

"Then he deceived you as to his circumstances?"

"No, I remember he merely asked for her hand."—Boston Transcript.

COURIER-JOURNAL ANSWERS QUESTIONS ABOUT GOVERNOR

Mitchell Vincent of Bee Spring, Edmonson county, makes an inquiry which demands an answer, and makes an assertion which will stand unchallenged, when he says, in a letter to The Courier-Journal:

I see that some are clamoring for a business man for Governor. Please tell me what you mean.

Do you mean a banker? Do you mean a merchant? Do you mean a landholder?

All that is necessary is an honest man with a bushel of horse sense.

If he is honest he will try to do the best for the State. If he has horse sense he will be able to do it.

Answering the question, neither a banker nor a merchant is meant, although a banker or a merchant might be, if otherwise qualified, the man for the place.

Kentucky needs as Governor a man of ability; a man of business comprehension; a man alive to the fact that Kentucky, magnificently endowed with natural resources, is a backward State, largely because politics has been in Kentucky a game played eagerly, with office as the stake, and without much interest, upon the part of the players, in the responsibilities and the opportunities of public service.

Kentucky needs as Governor—and this is far more important than whether he is a Democrat or a Republican—a man of absolute integrity; a man who would not in any circumstances treat appointive offices as political prizes, or permit public funds to be in any way devoted to the purposes of politics and politicians.

"All that is necessary is an honest man with a bushel of horse sense." "There are plenty of men," David Burton observed, "who are honest enough to keep out of jail."

There are plenty of men in politics who are honest enough not to violate the criminal laws, yet who are ready to make use of others and of trusts in the game of politics, and in the business of perpetuating themselves in office.

Such a man is not an honest man speaking strictly. He is not a man more concerned about serving the taxpayers than about serving his political party, or serving himself.

Twentieth century means "a job, public service is a job, political opportunity is a golden opportunity."

Kentucky has had enough of such men in office. Both of the political parties have contributed them. The ballad of political campaigns, in which the outs have belabored the ins, has been followed too often by a suspension of business as usual in public service, the business of making the State services political machines, of State funds, through appointive posts and contracts, political capital.

Kentucky now is spending $5,000,000 or $7,000,000 a year for roads, and requires for her best development greater outlays. The State needs as Governor a man with sufficient business sense to handle such sums wisely, and sufficiently honest to be, with confidence, entrusted with such a amount of the money of the people, appropriated to the uses of the people.

He need be only an honest man with a bushel of horse sense. He might be from any calling or profession.

Such a man elected by Kentucky voters, elected at the same time a Legislature willing to join hands with such a man, would be able to transform, or at least to set in motion, within the term of his office, the forces that, continuing in operation, would transform a State lamentably behind the times because its office-seekers have been, in too many cases, bidders of politics who wished to ride horses, not citizens animated by a desire to improve their State.

For any service, private or public, an honest man with a bushel of horse sense is invaluable, and hard to procure, while for every position there are applicants who lack those qualifications. But there are such men in Kentucky, and the political party finding such a man and procuring him as its gubernatorial nominee, and getting him elected, would win the gratitude of the best citizens of the State, Republicans and Democrats alike. The old school of politics has not developed such men, in either party.

The NEWS has six pages this week, as this is sufficient to handle all the matter of the dull season immediately following Christmas. With our new press equipment we are able to expand or contract according to the demands, without sacrificing the interests of our readers.

Friday morning the Louisa High School basketball team accompanied by their coaches will leave for South Point, Ohio, where they will play that evening.

Seven players are to be carried on each team but due to colds, injuries and some new players on the boys team, it is not known just who Coach Dorsett will take. It is probable that Capt. Hawes, Kirk, Norton, Chapp, Wilson, Adams, Walters or Kinsler will make up the girls squad. Capt. Queen, Compton, Land, Wray, A. See are sure of the trip and some two of the following: Hays, J. See, Plummer, Vaughan, Woods, G. Carter.

The small Buckeye team boasts of two strong and veteran teams. However they both have been defeated twice by Catlettsburg by small scores. This indicates that the Louisa team will have a fighting chance.

This will be their last trip before a game at home. The next Friday, January 5, the Catlettsburg boys come here to open a series of games on the home floor. This game will be the first of the seven which will be played here on succeeding Fridays except January 12 when the game will be played on Saturday the 13.

The Catlettsburg team is confident of repeating a victory over the local boys, and a hard fought game is expected. This will be the first time the home fans will have the opportunity to see the boys under a real test.

The teams have been in training each day during the vacation and some improvement can be seen. The followers look for several victories on the home floor even though most of the teams will have veteran players.

The coaches and players have met with the usual difficulties which are to be expected in any school for the first year of athletics. They are fighting away bravely determined to lay a sound foundation for athletics and physical education in the Louisa High School which will not be rivaled in the Big Sandy valley.

LIFE TRIES OUT A LAD.

(By Edgar A. Goss.)

"He's handsome and he's clever and his hand is touched with skill. His brain is quick in learning, but I've doubts about his still."

Said life, "and so I'll test him," and he summoned Father grim.

And pointed out this eager and ambitious youth to him.

He winked his eye and whispered, "There's a boy I know is bright. But I wonder if he's manly and is brave enough to fight?"

Just knock down the things he's built the wreck his youthful dream, and then

We'll see tomorrow morning if he starts it up again.

"I've let him be untroubled, for I rather like the boy. But the notion that I'm easy is a thought I must destroy."

So block his way with danger, do the worst that you can do, and I'll see if he is willing to stand up and fight with you."

Then Father came and tried him and he knocked his castle down.

And he spilled his hopes in ruins and he mocked him in the town.

He sneered at him and jeered him, but he found the youngster came. For he answered each disaster with "I'll get there, just the same!"

Then life called smiling Glory, and he said: "It's time to crown a man I have discovered, with the jewels of renown."

He has fought his way through failure, to his best he had been true—Now I know the stuff he's made of, and I know what he can do."

Living With Her New Daddy Now

—THE KAISER

Here is Princess Henriette at play on the grounds of her new daddy's exiled retreat at Doorn, Holland. She is the youngest daughter of the former Kaiser's new bride.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

Hot Biscuit.

Beat the yolks of four eggs, add one cup cream, or rich milk, one fourth teaspoon salt, and then gradually pour into one cup flour, beating continuously until perfectly smooth and free from lumps. Cut and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of four eggs, pour into hot greased pan and bake fifteen minutes in a hot oven.

Baked Balls of Mashed Potatoes.

Wash, pare and cut into six large potatoes, cook in salted water until done, then drain, shake until dry and mash well with a fork. Add 2 tablespoons of butter, 1 egg and enough hot milk to make soft enough to beat with salt to taste and beat over hot water until light and fluffy, shape into balls, roll very lightly in flour, place in a shallow, greased pan until brown and thoroughly heated. Serve on a hot dish and garnish with parsley.

Green Peas.

Heat the contents of 1 can of peas; add 1 tablespoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 tablespoon of butter and a dash of pepper; let cook slowly for 15 minutes, then serve. (Add 4 drops of onion juice, if liked, when the salt is added.)

Make Your Kitchen Attractive.

Don't have open shelves; have cabinets, or use curtains to hide the shelves. Make your kitchen cheerful and convenient. Have in it every convenience to save time and labor, but not even one useless, or unused article. Especially have a table on rollers, equipped with all articles needed in cooking, and roll it to the sink, or to the stove, or wherever you need it especially at any time. Stack your soiled, scraped dishes on it and roll it to the sink. Stack the freshly washed dishes on it, and roll back to the cupboard—in fact, save every step possible—if you value your health. Make your kitchen a place of convenience, efficiency and cheerfulness. Instead of a room which absorbs all your time and vitality.

CHURCH ANNOUNCEMENTS

Roosevelt's Nine Reasons For Going To Church.

1—In this actual world, a churchless community, a community where men have abandoned and scoffed at or ignored religious needs, is a community on the rapid down grade.

2—Church work and church attendance mean the cultivation of the habit of feeling some responsibility for others.

3—There are enough holidays for most of us. Sundays differ from other holidays in the fact that there are fifty-two of them every year—therefore, on Sundays go to church.

4—Yes, I know all the excuses. I know that one can worship the Creator in a grove of trees, or by a running brook, or in a man's own house just as well as in a church. But I also know, as a matter of cold fact, the average man does not thus worship.

5—He may hear a good sermon at church. He will hear a sermon by a good man, who, with his good wife is engaged all the week in making hard lives a little easier.

6—He will listen to and take part in reading some beautiful passages from the Bible. And if he is not familiar with the Bible, he has suffered a loss.

7—He will take part in singing some good hymns.

8—He will meet and nod or speak to good, quiet neighbors. He will come away feeling a little more charitable toward all the world, even toward those excessively foolish young men who regard church-going as a soft performance.

9 I advocate a man's joining in church work for the sake of showing his faith by his works.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH NOTES.

H. S. Early, Minister.

All services were well attended on last Lord's day. Everyone seemed to be in a worshipful frame of mind. Come again, you are always welcome. Services as follows:

Bible school at 9:30 a. m.
Communion and preaching 10:30.
Evening song and preaching 6:30.
Wednesday prayer and praise 6:30.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

"The Church of Friendship."

Sunday is the last Sunday in the old year. Make it the best and most faithful day of the year in church attendance. We invite every new pupil attending the school of Louisa to our church and assure you a welcome. The pastor will preach each morning hour for the next few Sundays on some phase of "Prayer Life." The church that prays is the church that God blesses. Sunday night will be the third of the series of sermons on the types of women, "The Woman Of The Streets." Our prayer meetings are worth attending. Come out Wednesday nights and see if your spiritual life won't grow stronger. Boy Scouts meet Tuesday night of next week in place of Monday night.

J. D. YAMPERT BRAME, Pastor.

M. E. CHURCH SOUTH

The services Sunday were largely attended. Two excellent sermons were preached by the pastor, Brother Jerigan. There was good music, a duet by Misses Freese and Spencer being the best number. On Monday afternoon the Sunday school was treated to a picture show performance at Garden theater.

TO THE OWNERS OF DOGS OF LAWRENCE COUNTY

The dog law that was made by the General Assembly in 1918, will be the same for the year 1923. It has been rumored over the county that this law was repealed by the 1922 Legislature and every family allowed a free dog, but this is a mistake.

All persons owning a dog or dogs are required by law to secure a license and tag for each dog for the year 1923, on or before the 1st day of January, 1923.

Fees:—One male $1.00; all over one male, $2.00 each. One female $2.00; all over one female, $1.00 each.

In applying for dog license please do not forget to state the breed, sex, age, and color of your dogs. Enclose the fee as stated above and I will mail your license and tag to you by return mail.

I have the license and tags on hand now for 1923 and they will be issued direct from this office. Get your tag before January 1, 1923.

Respectfully, yours,

CHAS. M. EDWARDS

Clerk Lawrence County Court.

THANK YOU ALL!

We were favored with a goodly share of the business of this community in the line of meats and groceries during 1922 and we desire to express our appreciation for it.

Let us serve you next year.

MR. WILSON IN POLITICS.

The announcement of Mr. Wilson's retirement from the law firm of Wilson & Colby is accepted in Washington as an indication that, with increasing strength he is preparing to participate actively again in the political life of the country.

If this is true, it is good news and welcome news, and the value of the service that Mr. Wilson is capable of rendering can hardly be overestimated.

The democratic party needs intelligent leadership and the republican party needs an intelligently directed opposition, but most of all the country needs a man like Mr. Wilson who has passed out of the turmoil of active politics, who can no longer be suspected of seeking office, and who can give to the American people the benefit of his remarkable experience and ripe counsel.

There was a time in American history when a strong president, after his retirement, became a "sage," as they called him, which means that he ceased to be a partisan in the ordinary sense and became a disinterested adviser. There have been no sages in recent years, but Mr. Wilson, if the state of his health permits, is in a position to revive an invaluable institution.

No other president ever had his wealth and variety of experience in peace and in war. No other president ever had to play his part on so vast a stage. No other president ever so profoundly affected the course of world history. No other president was ever less concerned with mere partisan advantage.

The more that Mr. Wilson has to do with American politics the better it will be for American politics and for the American people. It is not essential that they should always follow his advice, but it is necessary that there should be somebody who can strike the note, that only he can strike. It is necessary that there should again be leadership that is not tainted by personal ambition and is concerned only with great principles and great issues. That is what Mr. Wilson can give if physical strength is granted to him.
